

CSCU Student Success Key Performance Indicators: 2019 Community Colleges Report

November 11, 2020

This is the third annual CSCU report on Student Success Key Performance Indicators (KPI) containing leading indicators of student success for First Time Ever in College (FTEIC) students. It has been updated to include fall 2019 students (n = 9,002), expanding the data set to seven (7) years.

This report is disseminated annually to faculty, staff, and administrators of all CSCU community colleges as directed by the CSCU Board of Regents. The report is presented jointly by the CSCU Success Center and the CSCU Office of Research and System Effectiveness.

Why This Report?

Community colleges are measured by long-term indicators such as three-year completion rates. When we focus solely on these long-term measures, it is difficult to determine in the near term whether our educational innovations are effective.

Short-term measures, such as semester-to-semester persistence, provide timely feedback, but they do not always correlate with long-term completion rates. This report focuses on short-term KPIs that have been demonstrated nationally to correlate with completion. These data, which are available quickly and help predict eventual success, are known as leading indicators.

What's New This Year?

The data visualization tool, accessible at www.ct.edu/kpi, now includes the zip code variable. This provides further disaggregation possibilities, for example if you'd like to know how student success differs on your campus depending on the home zip code of the student. We hope this will lead to further conversations and action regarding local inequities on your campus.

From Equity Talk to Equity Walk

In partnership with the CSCU Success Center and Achieving the Dream (ATD), the State Success Team (SST) advocates for ideas that promote equity in education at all Connecticut State Community College campuses and leads these efforts on their local campus, helping to ensure the success of their students.

The SST in partnership with the AVP of Teaching & Learning are coordinating a book read using "From Equity Talk to Equity Walk" by Tia Brown-McNair, Estela Mara Bensimon, and Lindsey Malcom-Piqueux. More information on the book read, including how to access a digital copy of the book will be emailed soon.

Chapter 3 in “From Equity Talk to Equity Walk” is dedicated to how to use and communicate data to advance equity work.

While you are viewing this KPI report and the KPI dashboards, we hope you will keep the authors’ advice in mind and consider:

- how disaggregating data can help you recognize and address inequities experienced by students of color within our institutions and classrooms.
- how disaggregating our data makes inequities visible, and how an asset-based mindset will help us adjust policies and practices to better serve our students.
- how we can work together to advance equity through our data communications.
- how we can use data in equity-minded ways to develop institutional capacity in our student success work.

Spring 2020 KPI data and the NCE grade notation

Due to Covid-19, during the spring 2020 semester, community college students were offered modified grading options which included a NCE (No Credit Earned) notation. The NCE was an option for students who chose not to complete courses and did not want to receive a grade that might adversely affect their GPA.

In spring 2020, approximately 639 NCE notations were given to the fall 2019 FTEIC students in this report, or about 3% of all grades/notations earned by these students in spring. This relatively small number of notations may have had a limited effect on certain KPI that include spring data:

- KPI 1-3, regarding credit accumulation
- KPI 4-9, regarding mathematics and English completion
- KPI 13, average rate of college-level course passing
- KPI 14, average rate of college-level course completion
- KPI 21, average number of credits earned

The spring 2020 grading options can be accessed here: <https://www.ct.edu/academics/convert>

Conclusion

The CSCU Student Success Center hopes that this report will prompt conversations between you and your colleagues about how policy and practice could be modified to change this data in your area, across your campus, and in our system. For more information, please visit www.ct.edu/gp and www.ct.edu/studentssuccess. If you believe data is missing for your college or region, please contact your local IR Director or Regional IR Coordinator.
