   a. Regent Harris spoke about the FAC report to the BOR at the December 3, 2015 meeting, focusing on the five identified areas in the FAC report.
      i. Regent Harris presented information about retention of and service to students at the CSCU institutions. Strategies were discussed including best practices, for example the Georgia study presented by the FAC to the BOR, and existing or potential initiatives such as TAP, financial aid incentives for community college students who complete the required 60 credits and transfer to the state universities, the normalization policy regarding credits in degree programs, and the ongoing response following PA 12-40.
      ii. Regent Harris discussed expanding student services to increase retention, including mental health resources, outreach to veterans, child care centers especially those with subsidies for students, and online and hybrid courses done in a high quality way for students with child care concerns. Regent Harris discussed looking at the Governor’s Scholarship for part-time students and dual Pell Grant initiatives, as well as supporting initiatives at the Federal level such as year-round Pell Grants. Regent Harris discussed the need for services for students with food insecurity.
      iii. Regent Harris discussed the development of programs to address workforce needs and collaborating with state agencies to address workforce needs. She discussed working with the FAC and faculty to address these needs.
      iv. Regent Harris discussed maintaining a commitment to a liberal arts education for CSCU students.
   v. Regent Harris discussed furthering academic excellence and attracting students who might leave the state for higher education opportunities in other states. Regent Harris discussed continuing to focus on our academic quality and having conversations about that quality with the people of Connecticut.
vi. Regent Harris concluded that the five identified areas in the FAC report are of significant importance to the system. It is apparent that there are many good things happening in the system and she is committed to ensuring that the dialogue continues between the BOR, the system office, the FAC, and other stakeholders.

b. President Ojakian concurred and emphasized the need for us to work together as a system to address these needs, especially focusing on a number of action campaigns to address the already established goals of the CSCU.

c. Discussion ensued regarding the items presented by Regent Harris and President Ojakian, especially regarding the need to maintain a liberal arts education, student needs such as child care or transportation and solutions via collaborations with state agencies, the opportunity for the system to work collaboratively to reverse enrollment decline, and working to attract students who are registering at proprietary colleges in the state and using some of the best practices of the proprietary colleges to attract those students. President Ojakian concluded that the CSCU must begin doing a good job of indicating why we are a valuable asset, changing the narrative, and moving the state forward via the good work we do with our students. One of President Ojakian’s goals this year is to change the way the CSCU is perceived before the next legislative biennial budget is set. Discussion ensued that this must be a comprehensive effort that involves all stakeholders, including students and parents.

d. Discussion began regarding the possible FAC/BOR governance award. Clarification was provided regarding the award being granted to an institution, not to specific individuals in particular. The possibility was raised of the award being bestowed specifically by the FAC this year due to time constraints. The possibility was also raised of the award being announced at the conference, and that the award would be bestowed the following year. The specifics of the proposal were discussed further and there was agreement to continue working on the proposal collaboratively.
